Pin trading last hurrah

Well folks, this is it! The last hurrah in the pin trading sport.

At closing ceremonies, amid the last goodbyes, will be your last time to make a trade! Then you can sit back and take stock of your collection to see if you have won the "gold" by completing your sets.

No matter what, with each trade you met someone new, shared the spirit of the games and have a small memory to remember Chugiak - Eagle River and the 1996 Arctic Winter Games.

The best part of the trading is rehashing the deals and sharing the pins and the stories that go with them with friends and relatives back home.

The sport of pin trading goes well beyond the pin itself.

There's no reason that you had to be limited to just traditional pins. We know people who traded for the bars, name tags, key chains and other great stuff.

Wait staff all over town sported pins left along with their tip. So did the cashiers in stores, tellers at the banks, drivers and volunteers without whom this event would have been impossible to pull off.

"We were real thankful that United Methdist Church decided to let the dogs stay hey did it for the community spirit and for he Arctic Winter Games," Kilian said.

"It's a nice rustic setting and they're off by themselves — it's perfect for dog nushers," he said.

There were some questions as to whether or not it would work, and it worked well," Kobersmith said.

And he's glad it happened that way.

"When I think of what ministry is, it's hospitality. (And) one aspect of hospitality is making people feel welcome where they're at," Kobersmith said.

"It's been great."

By STACY SIMONET Alaska Star Managing Editor

tic Winter Games is a venue that most hoped they wouldn't see — the medical clinic set up at Chugiak High School.

"We've been fairly busy," said Dr. Larry Levine, who practices at Providence Alaska Medical Center. The six physicians and almost 80 nurses that have donated their time have seen 80-100 athletes a day.

Levine said everything from scrapes and bruises to broken bones have come through the clinic. He added that most of the broken bones "came that way." He said they were fractures on athletes that wanted to compete despite injury.

Minor illnesses such as a viral stomach flu, strep throat and upper respritory infections have also been common. "These are no big deal unless you are competing.
"We've had a couple of scares," Levine said. He said none of the scares have been founded and everyone has come through their illness or injury okay.

Despite the large number of athletes visit-ing the clinic, Levine said it is only taking about 10 minutes for the patients to get in to

"It (the flow) is about what we expected," Levine said.

The doctors and nurses have enjoyed getting to visit with the athletes. Levine said there have been some language barriers but trans-lator have been very helpful in alleviating any confusion. The doctor added that one physician donating time speaks Danish and can communicate with the Greenlanders.

"I think we've all had a good time," Levine said, speaking for the medical volunteers.

Volunteer has much experience

By SASHA PREWITT Ulu Volunteer Writer

You could call 1996 Arctic Winter Games Volunteer Geri-Lynn McLester something of a committee member expert.

McLester, 48, serves on the Arctic Winter Games Accommodations Committee as the cochair at Gruening Middle School, on the Medical Committee, the Volunteer Recognition Committee and the Host and Hostess Committee. She also served on the committee that designed the Arctic Winter Games volunteer pin.

All in all, she figures she's put in about 150 volunteer hours to date.

In her spare time, McLester is a teacher-assistant for special education and a tutor for the past three years for the Migrant Education Program with the Anchorage School District. She has two grown children, Kay-Lynn (23) and Dianne-Lynn (21).

The Games are not her first experience as a volunteer. McLester is very involved with St. Christopher's Episcopal Church.

Her main reason for becoming a Games volunteer is its youngest participants.

"I enjoy working with kids and youth," she said.

It was at a youth function last April, Kid's Day at the Egan Center, where McLester first learned about the need for Games volunteers. That's where she met Cheryl Lynn, the Head Volunteer for the games.

Lynn had a Games booth at the Egan and gave McLester information on becoming a volunteer. McLester was hooked and was on a variety of committees before deciding which particular ones she wanted to focus her attention on.

A degree in nursing made her naturally suited to serve on the Medical Committee that is coordinating the clinics at the venues for the Games.

McLester is a registered nurse, although she is not licensed to practice nursing in Alaska. Even so, her medical knowledge will come in handy for the Games.

"I will not be acting as a registered nurse, but as a medical assistant or a first-aid assistant," she said.

Recently, McLester donned her Accommodations Committee hat and with a score of other volunteers helped convert Gruening Middle School into a dormitory with cots and other living necessities for the hundreds of incoming athletes, coaches and others. What could have been an all-nighter was made much easier with a surprise edition.

"One of our co-chairs brought his ski team and their parents in to help set up the cots," she said "The kids got there at 6:30 p.m. and were done at 8 p.m. The adults stayed later to help fine tune other things."

Her most memorable experience so far was when she first started volunteer duties. She and a group of others helped design the volunteer pins given to Games volunteers based on the amount of hours served. As a volunteer for the Host and Hostess

As a volunteer for the Host and Hostess Committee, McLester will don an elegant gold-trimmed, wine-colored parka and visit different venues and events, meeting and greeting people. She describes it as a type of goodwill ambassador for the Games. The best part will be mingling with the athletes and other participants at the parties and having fun.

When asked if she would volunteer all over again, McLester answerd quickly.

"Yes," she said. "It's nice to see people working together and getting along."

Her advice for anyone interested in volunteering for a major event: "Get involved early," she said. "Don't wait until the end to volunteer. Other people are depending on you and you're only as good as your word."

Competition never ends.

It took years of perseverance, hard work, and sacrifice to prepare for a few moments of competition.

May those moments be golden.

May those moments be golden.

And may they live in our hearts forever.

Congratulations to all the participants in the Arctic Winter Games.

Alaska boys top basketball

Bigger, faster and stronger, the Team Alaska boys basketball team ran away with the Arctic Winter Game championship defeating Northwest Territories (NWT) 102-76 in the championship game Fri-

For the first 10 minutes the game was close, thanks to an offensive spurt by NWT's Ken Jones. Jones hit two shots from the key and made a steal that contributed to a basket as NWT went on a six-point spurt to narrow the score to 17-13.

Team Alaska missed several shots from the inside early on before settling into a torrid pace that

Juneau's Carlos Boozer scored
15 points of his game-high 24 in the first half with three nifty cutting drives down the lane from the right side of the court. Jay Jaybusch of Wrangell had six points, including one three-pointer in the first half, as did the other starting guard Nick Edwards of East High. When Jaybusch stepped out for a breather, Chad Sheldon of Noorvik hit three outside jumpers

Team Alaska's dominance was particularly seen in the paint with Boozer, Joe Samuels of Wasilla and Sam Towarak of Unalakleet. Scott Mallory also provided good inside play off the bench.

While Team Alaska was impressive, their defensive play was incredible. The team recorded nearly 15 steals in the first half, with most of them of NWT's interior passes into post player Ken Jones. Alaska's Boozer blocked three shots in the first half and caused several other rushed shots inside. Several NWT outside jumpers were also deflected.

Defense was thrown to the wind in the second half as the two teams combined for 110 points, with Team Alaska holding the narrow edge 56-both finishing with 13 points. Team Alaska boys team was undefeated in the double, round-robin Junior men basketball championship tournament prior to the championship game.

Northwest scored tournament's most lopsided win destroying Yukon 120-39 Wednesday. Garrett Bast and Perry Bisaro scored 18 points each as seven of the squad's 10 players hit double figures. Darcy Lansdown had 14, while Denezea Antoine and Stu Lownds contributed 13 each.

Camaraderie curling priority

By BROOK SARVELA Alaska Star Student Writer

Camaraderie is as significant to the sport of curling as skill. Before the beginning of a curling game, the teams traditionally wish each other good curling. Curling's brotherly atmosphere is produced from bonspeils, socializing and recounting.

Curling is a sport played on a lane of ice with a ring of circles at each end. Instead of the rough stones from nature that were once used, standardized stones are now utilized. One of four team members delivers the stone from one end. When he comes to the first red line, the thrower lets go of the stone. Two of his teammates use brushes to create a slick path to guide the stone. Brushes help with direction, holding lines and keeping the ice clean. The fourth team member acts as the skip at the end of the lane. The skip tells the thrower where to throw and how hard to send it.

Audience energized at gala

By LESLIE SEAMON Ulu News Volunteer Writer

The energy of the audience was as high as the energy on the stage Thursday night at Chugiak High School. Performers from Alaska, Greenland, Russia and Canada played to a full house who clapped, cheered and sometimes whooped with delight.

Ten-year-old fiddler Bobbie Bowlin and his guitar-playing father Bob provided a magic moment with their show-stopping rendition of "The Orange Blossom Special." In the middle of the song, they argued over whether to go faster or slower, then asked the audience to decide. "Faster, faster!" was the response, along with laughter and applause

Bowlin is a real fiddling celebrity. He's played with the Charlie Daniels Band and was the 1993 Alaska State field champion in the under-8-years-old category. The Bowlins dressed alike in cowboy hats and fringed, sparkling western shirts. Their personalities are low-key, but their music is definitely not. At one point, Bobbie's playing was so hot, his dad took off his own hat and fanned him.

The Bowlins were joined for one number by another famous fiddler, Bill Stevens.

Stevens specializes in old-time, Athabascan music of Interior Alaska. This heart-pumping music style has a 150 year tradition and sounds a lot like Cajun music, which Stevens' group also played. Folks in the audience couldn't sit still during their performance — they were clapping to the beat and tapping their feet.

Sharpshooter has been there, done that

When Michael Hopkins presented medals at the Izaak Walton Rifle Range Friday, it must have brought back memories. It was in 1970 when he was just 14 years old that he was on the awards stand receiving the gold

That was at Yellowknife — coincidentally, the site of the next Arctic Winter Games. Shooting Canadian Enfield rifles with a trigger pull of plus or minus five pounds, Hodkins defeated all other participating junior shooters with a score of 814 points.

That won him a choice of serial numbers for his prize — a Northwest Territories Commemorative 30-30 carbine rifle — and he chose the number of his winning score. Because he was only 14 however, he was too young to receive his prize through the mail, so it was sent to his parents to hold for him.

At his second Arctic Winter Games at Whitehorse in 1972, Hopkins won another Shooting Ulu Gold as a member of Alaska's Junior Rifle Team. During the 1974 Games, Hopkins was busy attending Embry Aeronautical University, but his rifle coach parents were in charge of the Anchorage AWG rifle competition.

As a member of the West High School Rifle Team, where his father was the assistant rifle coach, Hopkins tied the national record of 400 on the A-36 International Target in wining the Anchorage Mayor's 100 with his .22caliber model 1413 Feinwerkbau German target rifle. Hopkins is now 40, and his love of the sport has not diminished. He is currently a Chief Warrant Officer in the Alaska National Guard and recently shot a perfect score on the Camp Beauregard high-powered rifle sil-houette course in Louisiana. He is a lifetime member of the National Rifle Organization.

If Hopkins has a natural love of shooting, it should come as no surprise. His father Harold Hopkins was the first president of the Isaak Walton range, where the 1996 AWG shooting events were held.

Thank God for art'

Ulu News Volunteer Writer

"Pretty cool, man!

"Awesome art collection!"
"The best show we've ever had. When can we do it again?"

These are some of the comments written in the guest book at the Arctic Winter Games Visual Arts Exhibition, (Eagle River Fine Arts Academy). A visitor from Alberta wrote, "A gorgeous exhibit in a beautiful town." Ten-year-old Ashley Adams summed it up this way, "Good variety, funny titles."

Adams is right.

The exhibit featured paintings, sculptures, carvings and Native clothing from all over the Arctic region. And the titles ranged from profound to utterly simple.

"We Survive Through Our Masks" is a carving by Naknek artist Fred Anderson who works with antler and wood. "Fish" is a vivid acrylic by 15-year-old Danny Nolan. It's part of the Young Peoples Exhibition that was on loan from the Yukon Territory.

Sylvia Callahan, director of the Eagle River Fine Arts Academy, closed down the school and let the art show take over this week. She's very impressed with the results of their call for entries.

dreams, thought we'd get this caliber of work."

There were surprises in the show. At first glance "Close Encounters-Bears" seems to be a photograph, but it's an incredibly lifelike pastel by Palmer artist Judi Rideout. Rideout paints the Alaska wilderness with the eye of a hunter, which she is.

Aleut sculptor John Hoover believes that the Native artist communicates with the spirit world like a shaman, "Eagle Talk" continues a long tribal tradition of wood carving.

The three-dimensional nose and bold acrylic colors of an untitled bear make it a real attention-getter. Alvin Amson, who was raised on Kodiak Island, created it to confront the viewer as a wild animal confronts an unsuspecting hiker.

Arctic Games bonding time for Norther

"Competition at home would mean I could come home every night to be with our 1year-old daughter Mia"

Tamaris Dortch's story retold by John

After moving to Anchorage in 1985 and after entering a few running races I met local runner Georgia Gustafson. Gustafson told me about the Arctic Winter Games and about the snowshoe biathlon (running on snowshoes and shooting). Gustafson suggested I try out as they needed female competitors. Well, I made the team for the 1986 Arctic Winter Games in Whitehorse, Yukon Territories,

The experience was thrilling; to me it was like the Olympics but for ordinary people. To be treated like an athlete was wonderful. I won the gold ulu (medal) and I think the team won the bronze medal. Since this victory my shooting went downhill with the purchase of my own gun.

It was the 1988 Arctic Winter Games in Fairbanks, Alaska. Although I made the team tioning. I remember how I worried about my gun; it was stressful to maintain the gun on a daily basis. We were required to lock our guns every night; then early in the morning we would be hastened to clean them, or to inspect their cleanliness. We would take the guns to the shooting venue and sight them in and make sure all the parts worked. I recall the frustration and distress involved in caring for my equipment.

Another distress

was financial. I did not attend the 1990 Arctic Winter Games in Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, Canada due to the expense; I thought the cost for athletes to be over $700 dollars just for flying there to compete; as it turned out the cost ences.

cause I couldn't afford to pay that much money, I didn't train for competition. Training was costly for ammunition as it required considerable shooting practice.

I competed in

Alberta,

other games: The 1992 Arctic Winter The Arctic Winter Games Games Whitehorse, Yukon was and is a bonding Territories, Canada time for people from the where we won a team medal. I remember the far north. It is a time for troubles I had with northern people to join my gun; it was an insharing unison experiexpensive gun. I missed the tryouts for the 1994 Arctic Winter Games in Slave Canada because I was pregnant.

I waited eagerly and hopefully to see if I made the team for the 1996 Arctic Winter Games in Eagle River, Alaska; I took second place in the tryouts but I had to see if my time Competition at home would mean I would be able to come home every night to be with our 1-year-old daughter Mia. In past games, I wouldn't sleep well since athletes from other sports were placed together in the same room despite conflicting competition schedules.

The Arctic Winter Games was and is a bonding time for people from the far north. It is a time for northern people to join sharing unison experiences. It is so fun and interesting to talk to the people from the different Canadian provinces. I was shocked by the subtle differences in the way the Canadians talked and acted; and I was impressed by their display of good sportsmanship by all their athletes. They lacked a dog-eat-dog mentality; there was no win-at-any-cost mind set. Everybody was so helpful which made for friendly competition combined with an opportunity to trade lapel pins. Sometimes I couldn't bear to trade my pins because I was so fond of them. Yet I did manage to collect some Northwest Territory pins. In the end I think I had more fun than the kids.
